

Artemis Lodge

- What's It All About?

Many Sussex masons participate in various shooting and hunting activities and like to be able to combine both interests. A clay shoot is held regularly that is informal and relaxed but not without a bit of friendly competition for the annual trophies. For details go to www.smssa.org.uk

With steady building interest, we've now formed a shooting sports lodge following the path taken in other provinces. It's called the Artemis Lodge after the Greek goddess of hunting, which reflects the nature of much our shooting. It's open to any mason with an interest in or a supporter of sporting shooting. The consecration was held on the 10th November 2018.

The Lodge meets four times a year, on the 2nd Tuesday in February, April, September and November, at Chichester Masonic Centre. We keep the meetings short so that it's easy to fit in for busy people, we'd also like to encourage wives and partners to be able to join in so there will be a summer event each year combining a shoot and Dinner Dance.

There will be a strong shooting theme to the meetings so the dress code will be what you'd wear for a formal pheasant shoot (except installation meetings which will be normal masonic dress) and there will be game on the menu.

We're very much open for new members, both existing freemasons and those new to freemasonry. If you're interested and would like to join or just keep up dated so you can visit later on contact David Thornley at david@chichesterfreemasons.org

The lodge website is kept up to date with activities and has more details, to see what's happening go to www.artemislodge.org
